IRISH SONG.

On Innisfallen's fairy isle,
Amid the blooming bushes,
We leaned upon the lovers' stile
And listened to the thrushes,
When first I sighed to see her smile
And smiled to see her blushes.

Her hair was bright as beaten gold
And soft as spider's spinning,
Her cheek outbloomed the apple old
That set our parents sinning,
And in her eyes you might behold
My joys and griefs beginning.

In Innisfallen's fairy grove
I hushed my happy wooing
To listen to the brooding dove
Amid the branches cooing.
But, oh, how short those hours of love,
How long their bitter ruing!

Poor cushat! Thy complaining breast
With woe like mine is heaving.
With thee I mourn a fruitless quest,
For, ah, with art deceiving,
The cuckoo bird has robbed my nest
And left me wildly grieving!
—"Songs of Killarney" in Spectator.

ADRIFT.

It was not a bad night at sea, but it was not a good one either. The sea was smooth and the wind was light, but the sky was overcast and there was a low lying haze which narrowed the horizon down to a circle half a mile in diameter. The water over the ship's side looked black and oily, and here and there when a lazy crest reflected the beams of one of the vessel's lights the glitter of it was lurid and baleful. On deck all was silent save for the occasional ill tempered comments of the first mate, who was on watch and had a sailor's disposition toward thick weather.

"What in Africa is that slatting about so on the main topsail yard? Here, you, tumble up and see what's adrift."

His words were addressed to a tall, muscular boy who had been leaning against the rail and staring thoughtfully into the sea. Ferris James had been in a dark reverie. He was not a happy boy, for everything seemed to him to have gone wrong. His father, once a man of means, had died bankrupt, leaving him absolutely penniless. Ferris was then glad to secure a berth as an ordinary seaman aboard the ship Glendower, outward bound for Bombay. It was while he was meditating on his changed circumstances that he received the curt order of the mate and responded with the instinctive "Aye, aye, sir."

The boy, strong and active, with the alert sinews of 17 years, danced up the ratlines like a lithe cat and was soon out upon the yard, which had the swing of a gigantic seesaw. Ferris examined one-half foot by foot till he found himself on the extreme end of the yardarm. A moment later—he never knew how it happened—the yard seemed to slip from under him, and he shot down barely had time to utter a startled cry before the waters closed over him.

When he came to the surface, he saw something round and white floating near him. He grasped at it and found that it was a life buoy which had been thrown from the ship. The vessel herself was fast slipping into the impenetrable gloom. He knew that a boat would be lowered, but he doubted that it would find him on such a thick night. After a time he began to emit at intervals the sailor's farreaching "Aho-o-o-y!" There was no response out of the pitch-like blackness, and when three-quarters of an hour had passed Ferris, with a strange feeling of indifference, stopped shouting.

A feeling of irresistible lassitude stole over the boy, and a weird numbness crept through his limbs. He felt as if he were overpowered by sleep, and twisting his arms in the life line of the buoy, which he had managed to get over his head and down under his arms, he allowed his head to fall on one side, and he lost consciousness He made no resistance, for he felt that such a life as his was not worth struggling for. He remembered dimly afterward that his last thought was, "I wonder where I'll wake up?"

Very much to his own surprise, he awoke in the same place—adrift in the north Atlantic, with only a circle of cork and canvas between him and the great circle of eternity. For a few moments he rested languidly, scarcely moving even his hands. Then a spark of hope fired him with a desire to scan the sea. He raised his head and slowly swept a gaze around his narrow horizon. He smiled at his own lack of enthusiasm when he apathetically discovered a bark not more than a mile away.

The bark looked miserable. Her spars were all awry, and her rigging was full of slack lines. She steered an erratic course, under scant canvas, and altogether showed evidence of utter demoralization.

"There must be a sick or mutinous crew aboard there," muttered Ferris. "I wonder which?"

The thought that a vessel might pass near him in his desperate plight gave him a sudden desire to live, or at least not to perish so miserably. He began to think how he could make some signal that might be seen aboard the bark when she erratically changed her course directly toward him and came splashing cumbrously across the dun gray sea like a great wounded bird.

Presently the vessel was not more than 300 yards away, and the boy raised his voice in a far cry, "Bark aho-o-o-y!"

Out of the tangle of wreckage forward was a raised face, which even at that distance looked pale and haggard. Its owner peered a moment over the waters and then waved his hand. The next instant two or three other forms appeared on the bark's forecastle, and she shifted her helm. Ferris saw that all her boats save a small dingy at the port quarter davits were stove in, and presently he saw four seamen slowly and laboriously lowering away the dingy. As they came alongside the boy they gazed at him with a dull curiosity in their lack luster eyes, and one of them said:

"What are you doin there?"

"Don't you think you'd better save me first and ask me questions afterward?" asked the boy.

"I s'pose so," said the man in a dull way.

Then he helped the boy to climb into the boat and pulled the Glendower's life buoy in after him, after which the rescued boy told the story of his plight.

They were now alongside the bark, and Ferris clambered aboard, where he was received in a sort of dazed silence. The crew hoisted the light dingy slowly and feebly, when the boy gazed around the melancholy deck. Stove boats, tangled rigging, pieces of shattered spars, splintered hencoops and broken skylights combined to make a scene of destruction such as the boy had never beheld before. Presently the crew got the dingy to her davits, and then one of the men who had pulled her beckoned Ferris to go aft.

"Now," he thought, "I shall be taken to the captain and shall learn what's wrong here."

As he approached the knot of men on the poop deck he saw that they were all ordinary seamen.

"It's a mutinous crew," he thought. "They've got the captain in irons below, and they wish me to join them—or join him."

"What's your name?" asked one of the men, who seemed to be their leader.

"Ferris James."

"What's your rating?"

"Ordinary seaman," he answered.

A groan of dissatisfaction emanated from the little knot of men.

"Just our luck," said the spokesman. "What could we expect in this here bark? Why, she's a regular Jonah."

"But I'm willing to work," said Ferris. "I'm a good seaman, and I'm ready to turn to and do my share, or even a little more, for you men look as if you were used up."

"Used up!" said Tom Hulkins, the spokesman of the crew. "Well, I should say so. Look at the bark."

"Yes, I've noticed her state," said Ferris.

"No, you haven't," answered Hulkins, "because it ain't all to be noticed. I'll tell you all about it."

Then the seaman described how some days previous they had encountered a terrific gale, during which the captain, both mates and four sailors were washed overboard and drowned. Some sails and all their boats were lost. They were all worn out and had lost courage, he added, as there was no one on board who could navigate the ship.

When the man ceased talking, a dry sob shook his frame, while some of his shipmates turned and scanned the horizon with pallid faces and clinched teeth. The whole speechless horror of the crew's experience rose before Ferris' mind in a picture of misery. The next moment he was transformed from an indifferent boy to a hopeful man. Here to live for himself.

"Your compass is a good one, isn't it?" he asked.

"Yes, it's good enough," answered Hulkins.

"Is there a chronometer aboard?"

"Certainly."

"Is it running?"

"Yes, I kept it wound up. I don't know what for."

"Charts and sextant all right?"

"Yes, but what do you mean? Can you"—

"Yes, I can!" exclaimed Ferris. "I can navigate."

The glow of crimson that sprang into the pallid faces was like the first sunlight after an arctic winter. For an instant all were silent. Then the men fell to laughing, crying and embracing one another like a lot of hysterical girls.

"Will you take command of this bark, sir?" asked Hulkins as soon as he could master his emotion.

"I'm no 'sir,'" said Ferris. "I'm just an ordinary seaman, but I'll navigate you to the nearest port."

"Hurrah!" cried the crew.

"Now, lads," said Hulkins, "let's turn to and try and get her into some shape aloft!"

"Aye, aye!" was the willing response as the men made a dash for the rigging.

Ferris went into the captain's cabin and found the chronometer running. As a measure of precaution he wound it himself and then got out the sextant and chart. Presently he went on deck to take a morning observation for longitude. At noon Ferris got his latitude and found that the course for Fayal, one of the Azores, was east by north. The wind held fair, and under such canvas as the little crew was able to set the bark made a comfortable five knots an hour directly on her course. It was just after sunrise on the morning of the third day that one of the men cried, "Land ho!"

Four hours later the bark was riding at anchor in Fayal roads, and Ferris felt as if his occupation was gone. But no officer could be obtained at that port, and it became Ferris' duty after the necessary repairs had been made to ship five seamen and continue the voyage to Liverpool, for which port the vessel was bound.

On the arrival of the bark at its destination great was the joy of the owners, who had given her up for lost. They rewarded Ferris with a snug sum of money and made him second mate of the vessel. Ferris invested his cash in the bark's next voyage, which brought him a substantial profit. Five years later he was a shipowner himself and in a fair way to become rich. He often looked back to that gloomy morning when he floated on a life buoy in the heart of the north Atlantic and wished to die.

"It was," he said, "my darkest hour, and it came literally and figuratively just before the dawn."—Boston Pilot.

RELIC OF PAST AGE.

A Century Old Newspaper That Is Remarkably Well Preserved.

Mr. Glenn Brown, the architect, has an interesting relic in the shape of an old newspaper, probably one of the oldest publications to be found in this country. It is The Virginia Gazette and Alexandria Advertiser, published in Alexandria. The copy is dated Thursday, April 25, 1793. The motto of the paper, which is printed under the title, is as follows:

O thou by whose almighty nod the scale
Of empires rises or alternate falls,
Send forth the saving virtues round this land!

There is no mention made of the names of the publishers or editors, but an advertisement, which is inserted, asks for rags, old seines, fishing nets and the like to be brought to the office, so that paper can be made from it. From this it would seem that the firm manufactured its own paper.

In the news columns, which form but a small portion of the paper, the advertisements covering a greater part, is a dispatch dated London, Feb. 25 previous, giving an account of an insurrection in Ireland. There are also published Paine's reasons for preserving the life of Louis Capet. The plan of the new French constitution is given and a number of dispatches from Paris appear.

One of the most interesting advertisements in the paper is that of a lottery. It states that it will be given by the commissioner appointed to prepare the public buildings, etc., within the city of Washington for the reception of congress and for their permanent residence after the year 1800. Samuel Blodgett was the agent for the affair in this city. The capital prize was a hotel, with all furnishings, valued at $50,000. There were cash prizes of $25,000, the whole amounting to $350,000. The lottery, by the way, was never held, as much opposition was developed against it. Samuel Blodgett was the one whose heirs claimed a large portion of the national capital.

There are several advertisements for runaway slaves, offering rewards of from $6 to $16. There is an offer of a reward of $40, which would seem large compared with those offered for the runaway slaves, for eight bushels of clover seed, stolen from Mount Vernon. The advertisement goes on to state that the clover seed was stolen from the granary and is supposed to have been taken by negroes. It is signed by Anthony Whiting, who was Washington's overseer.

There is an advertisement in the paper of the celebrated horse Eclipse, from which many of the thoroughbred horses of the present day have descended. There is also an advertisement of the opening of the city tavern, at the sign northern and southern mails will arrive at the office until Nov. 1 on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 6 p. m.

On one of the pages is a song composed for Lodge No. 10 "of Charlestown," commonly called Portobacco.

The paper consists of four pages of four columns each. The size of the sheets is about 12 by 18 inches. The paper was published Thursdays of each week. The s's were all like f's. The paper has been remarkably well preserved.—Washington Star.

For Appearance's Sake.

She—Give you a latch key? Never!

He—But, wifey, just think how the fellows will make fun of me and abuse you.

She (reflecting)—Yes, that's so. Well, you can have this room key, and then you can tell them you took it by mistake for the house key.—Fliegende Blatter.

Conductor—There ain't no such street to my knowledge.

Passenger—Oh, well, Sixty-second street will do.—Philadelphia Record.

The Song of the Cradle.

Bye, bye! Hope rises high:
There's a sweet little cradle hung up in the sky;
A dear little life that is coming to bless;
Two soft chubby hands that will pat and caress;
A pure little soul winging down from above;
A darling to cave for, a baby to love.

In the days when Eve sinned it was written that motherhood should hereafter be accompanied with pain and sorrow; but this curse upon our foreparents has been lightened more and more as mankind have learned to rise superior to many of their sins and mistakes.

One of the grandest agencies which enlightened Science has discovered to relieve motherhood from excessive suffering is the "Favorite Prescription" devised by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. This wonderful "Prescription" imbues the entire nervous system with natural, healthy vitality; gives elastic vigor to the delicate organism specially concerned in motherhood; renders the prospective mother strong and cheerful and makes the coming of baby entirely free from danger and almost free from pain. The delighted gratitude of Mrs. Pearl Walton, of Alvo, Cass Co., Neb., will find an echo in the heart of every expectant mother:

"Previous to the birth of my child," writes Mrs. Walton, "I had no appetite, was sick at my stomach, had headache, could not rest at night, was completely worn out in every way. I commenced to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and began to improve right away. I used two bottles of this great medicine and felt like a new person. At the time of confinement I was in labor but a little while and I owe it all to that great remedy—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

WAR NEWS

Four transports with 4,500 volunteers on board left San Francisco Wednesday for the Philippines. So far this makes 8,300 volunteers that have been sent to reinforce Admiral Dewey. The third expedition, comprising 10,000 or 12,000 men, is expected to get under way in about three weeks.

The American flag has been planted on Cuban soil at Guantanama, fifty miles from Santiago. Six hundred marines were landed there on Friday of last week, since which time several encounters have taken place between the Americans and Spaniards, in all of which the latter were put to flight with heavy loss. On Wednesday the Americans and Cubans made a combined attack on the Spaniards, routing the enemy on all sides. In these series of conflicts at least 200 Spaniards have been killed, 400 wounded and 18 captured. The Americans have lost six men and the Cubans two. In these combats the land troops were assisted by the warships Texas, Marblehead and Suwanee, which shelled the enemy with deadly effect.

Admiral Dewey still holds his own in the Philippines and is anxiously awaiting the arrival of reinforcements in order to seize Manila.

A dispatch from Key West says that six thousand Spanish volunteers, stationed near Havana, have deserted Gen. Blanco and joined the Cubans.

Admiral Sampson has officially announced that Admiral Cervera's entire fleet of warships is inside Santiago harbor. The ships were actually seen by Lieutenant Blue, who was assigned to the dangerous exploit of creeping up to within a short distance of the harbor and locating the fleet with his own eyes.

LET US CELEBRATE.

EVERY patriotic citizen of Sonoma should constitute himself a committee of one to make the forthcoming Fourth of July celebration in this city a grand success. Let all feelings of business rivalry and jealously be cast aside for the nonce and let us resolve ourselves into a band of patriotic American citizens to do honor to the birth of one of the grandest nations on the face of the earth. Let the stars and stripes, that banner of the brave and the free, float from every house top in town, and let every true American's breast swell with pride on that day, and, more than all, let every one contribute their mite toward making the celebration a patriotic success.

CROP PROSPECTS.

THE month of June has been very favorable for hay, most of which has been cut and stacked and is now in the hands of the balers. The crop was never better in this valley. The cherry crop, which for the most part has been picked and marketed, has been remarkably fine and has netted many of our orchardists a good profit. Peaches will not turn out in some orchards a half crop, while in others thinning is being resorted to. There will be an immense crop of Bartlett pears and prunes, while of apples there will be a fair, although not a heavy crop. Grapes never looked better and there will be a heavy yield. Taking it all in all Sonoma Valley has been a gainer instead of a loser on account of the drouth, which has ruined many farmers in less favored agricultural districts of California the past season.

Dr. D. G. Atwood and mother left yesterday afternoon for San Francisco. They will visit Sonoma again before settling permanently.

WHAT IS BEING SAID

Pointers Secured by Our Man Around Town.

That this cat-and-dog community ought to stop snapping, growling, spitting and clawing at one another for once and make the coming Fourth of July celebration a grand success.

That the Board of City Trustees can govern this town all right without the advice of the Broadway freak. That the flopping of his ears and his senseless braying is as harmless as it is amusing.

That it is very small business to cry out that a celebration in Sonoma will only benefit the beer saloons. That no one but the most narrow-minded and bigoted indulge in such talk. That a celebration on the Fourth will bring strangers into Sonoma and make the town known to the outside world.

THE DEMOCRATS.

Meeting of the County Central Committee-Santa Rosa Chosen for Holding of Both Conventions—The Primaries.

The Democratic County Central Committee met at Santa Rosa on Saturday last for the purpose of naming a day for the holding of the primaries and to select a place for holding both a State and District Convention.

Ben. S. Wood, Chairman, presided at the meeting, which was represented by thirty-seven committeemen.

At 1 o'clock the committee came into session. On motion of A. D. Laughlin it was decided to hold two county primaries and two conventions this year. The first to elect delegates to the State and District Convention and the second to nominate county officers, etc.

James W. Oates moved that the primaries for delegates for the first convention held for the purpose of selecting delegates to the State and District Convention be held throughout the county on June 25th, 1898, and that the first county convention be held July 2nd. The motion carried.

J. T. Coffman moved that Santa Rosa be selected as the place for holding the first county convention. This was agreed to. The following resolution was adopted:

RESOLVED, That primaries be held in the several precincts of Sonoma county on the 25th day of June, 1898, for the purpose of electing delegates to a Democratic convention to be held in Santa Rosa at 11 o'clock A. M. on the 2nd day of July, 1898, to elect nineteen delegates to the Democratic State, Congressional and District Conventions. That the polls be open for said primary election between the hours of 1 P. M. and 5 P. M., except Redwood township, and there from 2 to 7 P. M., and that the members of the Central Committee of each precinct make the necessary arrangements.

RESOLVED, That the apportionment for delegates to said County Convention be made upon the vote cast for William Jennings Bryan for President and that a delegate be allowed for each forty votes so cast and fraction thereof of twenty more, provided that each precinct be entitled to at least one delegate.

James W. Oates moved that the members of the committee proceed to ballot for a place to hold the second convention. The motion carried.

It was decided that the place selected must receive a majority of all the votes cast.

On the first vote the ballot was as follows: Santa Rosa, 13; Guerneville, 14; Cloverdale, 8. Neither place having received a majority of the votes, a second ballot was taken with the result that Santa Rosa received 18 votes; Guerneville, 7; Cloverdale, 10.

Santa Rosa having received a majority of all votes cast was declared selected as the place for holding the second or county convention.

No other business coming up for consideration the committee adjourned to meet at the call of Chairman Wood.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

FOURTH OF JULY IN SONOMA.

Committee of Arrangements Hard at Work—The Literary Programme.

The committee appointed to make arrangements for celebrating the Fourth of July in this city held another meeting at the City Pavilion on Monday evening last.

A majority of the committeemen were present and all took a lively interest in the proceedings.

It was decided to hold the literary exercises, which will be published next week, in the City Pavilion, which will be gaily decorated with American flags, banners and evergreens.

There will be dancing, bicyle races and a multitude of athletic games for prizes. The day's festivities will conclude with a grand ball at Union Hall in the evening. Full particulars will appear in these columns next week. In the meantime let every patriotic citizen strive to do his level best to make the celebration one of the biggest and most successful ever held in Sonoma.

Took the Law Into His Own Hands.

Fred. Von Hagan, foreman of the Nordwell ranch, near El Verano, was arrested by Officer Robin on Monday last, on complaint of Maurice Newell, and charged with petty larceny. It appears that two small boys, Lawrence Larsen and Eugene Dutel by name, who are stopping with Mr. Newell, on Saturday last borrowed his shot gun and rifle and sallied forth in quest of game. While hunting on the Nordwell place they were overhauled by Von Hagan, who took both guns away from the lads. He then ordered them off the ranch. Failing to give up the guns within a reasonable time Mr. Newell came to town and had the obstreperous Von Hagan arrested. The boys state that they thought they had a right to hunt on the place, as no signs were displayed warning them off. The defendant was taken before Judge Cheney. He entered a plea of not guilty, and his trial was set for next Monday at 10 A. M.

He Stole Wine.

Sam Bemiss, a hard-looking citizen of the hobo element, was arraigned before Judge Cheney last Wednesday afternoon and charged with petty larceny. He plead guilty to the charge and was sentenced to the County Jail for thirty days. Bemiss, who made his appearance in town Wednesday morning, on the afternoon of that day entered the City Hotel unobserved by the proprietor, L. Quartaroli, and made way with two bottles of wine. As he was leaving the premises, however, he was detected by Mr. Quartaroli, and after a short chase was overhauled and the liquor found hidden under his coat. The marauding hobo was turned over to Officer Robin, who took him to Santa Rosa Tuesday and lodged him in the County Jail to serve out his sentence.

THE CITY TRUSTEES.

BOND PROPOSITION STILL HANGS FIRE.

Engineer Von Geldern Will be in Town to-day to Assist the Water Committee—Other Matters.

A regular semi-monthly meeting of the City Trustees was held last Wednesday evening. Present—President Duhring and Trustees Seipp, Hartin, Davis and Harris.

A large number of citizens were also present in anticipation of some action being taken in regard to a municipal ownership of water works, but owing to the non-arrival of engineer Von Geldern last Saturday the question went over until the next regular meeting, much to the disappointment of the water advocates, who now number at least two-thirds of the population of the town. Mr. Von Geldern will arrive in town to-day, however, and will examine and report upon the Lawrence, Emparan, Toroni, Gilbert and the Sonoma Water Works systems. When the report will have been submitted to the special Water Committee it will be in a position to submit its report in turn to the Trustees, which will be at the next regular meeting, when definite action may be expected.

The Fire Committee reported that the city's fire hydrants needed looking after, and the committee was authorized to examine them and make necessary repairs.

The Water Committee reported that Mrs. Emparan had so far failed to make an offer to the city to sell the water system of the Sonoma City Water Works Company, and the committee asked and was granted further time in which to make its report.

President Duhring reported that he had received a letter from engineer Von Geldern stating that he would be up Saturday, June 18th, sickness having prevented him keeping his appointment with the Water Committee last week.

On motion of Trustee Davis, which received a second from Trustee Hartin, a committee was appointed to confer with the Sonoma Electric Light Company in relation to lights for the city. The President appointed as such committee Trustees Davis and Hartin.

A communication from Mrs. Susie T. Enos was received and read by Clerk Poppe, in regard to the city allowing Mrs. Enos to take in a portion of the side street running from Broadway to First-street West. The Street Committee, on motion of Trustee Hartin, seconded by Trustee Seipp, was instructed to look up the law in the matter and report at the next meeting.

The application of the Sonoma Water Company for a franchise to lay water mains, etc., was again laid over.

The following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

S, F, & N. P. Railway, culvert	$12.50
Wm. Green, lumber	34.64
Jno. Stademan, labor	27.00
F. T. Duhring, legal services	80.00
H. H. Granice, printing	53.90
Total	$208.04

The bill of H. H. Granice for $96 was passed and laid over for lack of funds. The bill of Marcy & Dunbar for $2.50 was referred to the Street Committee.

THE REGONI BROTHERS.

Convicted of Assault With Deadly Weapons and Sentenced to the State Prison.

The Regoni brothers, Pietro and Antonio, well-known block makers in this valley, who recently engaged in a fracas at Melitta, were sentenced last Monday by Judge Burnett to serve one year and fifteen months respectively in the State Prison. It appears that the brothers, who were working in the block quarries in Melitta, became engaged in a wordy war, a couple of weeks ago, and Pietro hit Antonio over the head with a rock, placing him hors de combat. After Antonio had his wound dressed he heeled himself with a pistol and seeking out Pietro took several shots at him, none of which, however, took effect. Each had the other arrested on charges of assault with a deadly weapon. Antonio was tried on Wednesday of last week in Judge Burnett's court and the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. Pietro had his trial the following Friday and he also was found guilty.

Republican County Convention.

Chairman O. O. Webber has notified the members of the Republican County Central Committee that a meeting of the committee will be held at Armory Hall, Santa Rosa, at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, June 25th. At the meeting the time and place for holding the Republican County Convention will be decided upon.

SONOMA VALLEY HIGH SCHOOL.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

Scholarly and Patriotic Addresses by Hon. E. W. Davis, R. M. Sims, Vernon Goodwin, and Principal Benj. Weed.

Last Saturday evening the Class of '98, Sonoma Valley Union High School, received their diplomas of graduation. Union Hall was handsomely decorated for the occasion. American flags met the eye on every side. Old Glory did more than appeal to the artistic sensibilities of that audience. The sight of those stars and stripes, that red, white and blue appealed to their hearts. It was this feeling kindled that made the decorations appear so beautiful. Never at a commencement exercise has there been such a burst of patriotism. The spirit of loyalty, patriotism and love for country lurked in hall, in decorations, in faces, in words and in the hearts of that audience assembled. Under what more propitious circumstances could the Class of '98 have bade farewell to school life? After a fervent prayer by the Rev. C. E. Chase the strains of a well-known national anthem burst upon the audience, then Miss Katherine Rice Morris, one of the three graduates, came forward and in a most pleasing and cheerful manner bade those present a right royal welcome. Miss Morris, a pretty brunette, was gowned in a simple white organdy, trimmed in lace and white satin ribbon. She was followed by Miss Mabel Claire Thomas, who gave the class history from the time of its entrance into the High School. Miss Thomas is one of the brightest graduates the High School has turned out. She demonstrated this fact by her recital of the history of the class. Her self-possession was remarkable in one so young and she recited with considerable energy and vive-a-vive. Miss Thomas was dressed in white mull, trimmed in lace and taffeta ribbon. Wm. Beverly Chase read the valedictory. Mr. Chase has a splendid voice and a good address. His paper was excellent. Mr. Vernon Goodwin then addressed the audience. He advanced some excellent ideas on citizenship and made a very stirring speech. Music then concluded the first part of the programme.

Part II was opened by an address by R. Maury Sims, Vice Principal of the High School. Mr. Sims is a forcible speaker. He made clear the advantages of a High School and won much applause for his efforts in this speech toward the advancement of that educational institution. He was followed by Hon. E. W. Davis, Secretary of the Board of Regents of the University of California. Mr. Davis' address was certainly the best given in Sonoma for a long time. It overflowed with patriotism and genuine sentiment. It appealed to every one present. It was a recital of the present difficulties with Spain and the audience went wild with enthusiasm. Then Hon. Robt. Howe, with a few well-chosen remarks, presented the diplomas to the graduates. The programme was brought to a close by remarks from Benj. Weed, Principal of the High School. Mr. Weed has a host of friends throughout the valley and county, and he was given a hearty welcome as he arose to speak. His remarks, weighty, genuine and sincere, were appreciated by all present.

The Class of '98 has the good wishes of the INDEX-TRIBUNE. May good fortune smile upon the three graduates of the Sonoma Valley Union High School.

Increase of Salary.

The Pastmaster General has increased the salary of Mrs. Millie Bates, Postmaster at this place, $100 per annum. The raise is made owing to increase of business in the Sonoma postoffice. This brings the salary up to $1180 per annum.

A Baccalaureate sermon was preached last Sunday morning at the M. E. Church by Rev. O. E. Hotle. The middle aisle of the church was reserved for the High School—the Class of '98, post graduates and teachers. Over the altar was draped a large American flag and the little railing in front of the chancel was covered in gold and white, the High School colors. Rev. Mr. Hotle preached an eloquent and appropriate sermon and the choir rendered some choice sacred music.

The nuptials of Benj. Weed and Miss Eva Gundlach will be solemnized Tuesday, the 21st inst., at the Bundschu residence in San Francisco. Mr. Weed is to be congratulated. His fiancee, Miss Gundlach, is a highly accomplished musician and has made a host of friends by her amiable disposition.

The Cotillion Club held an assembly at Agua Caliente last night. The beautiful grounds surrounding the hotel were lit with Oriental lanterns and the well-lighted avenue leading up to the picturesque dance platform presented a fairy like appearance. The merry young crowd spent several hours in dreamy waltz and jolly two step and between dances strolled through romantic arbors, in which Agua Caliente abounds. After light refreshments the club and its guests left for their respective homes. The assembly was a great success and much is due to Mrs. Nordin, the proprietor of the popular summer resort.

One of the most pleasant and successful social affairs given in this valley this season was a birthday party tendered the Misses Maude Tompkins and Maude Miner, at the home of the latter, on last Tuesday evening. The Miner residence, which is one of the model homes of Sonoma Valley, was artistically decorated for this occasion, the handiwork of the young hostesses and Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Miner. The dwelling and surrounding garden, illuminated with many Japanese lanterns, presented a scene long to be remembered by those present. The interior of the house was decorated with flowers and the Stars and Stripes. Besides those having private conveyances, a large number of young people enjoyed a hay ride from town to the Miner residence, where festivities reigned supreme. The evening was enjoyably passed in games and music until midnight, when a march was played and partners were chosen for supper. After doing justice to the most delicious repast ever spread before an assembly, the young people returned to the parlors and whiled the time away until early morn. After wishing the hostesses many returns of the happy day the journey home was made with song and good cheer. Those present were Misses M. Miner, E. Chase, V. and K. Morris, K. Nankervis, E. Hunter, E. Greenberg, J. Campbell, A. Hammond, L. Steiger, L. Shaw, L. Plummer, L. Culberson, E. Crimby, M. Tompkins, C. Stark, Messrs. B. Jones, S. Glaister, M. Glaister, W. Chase, Ed. Morris, W. HOW MUCH HE LOVED HER.

My passion, Sylvia, to prove,
You bid me tell how much I love.
I love thee, then—but language fails—
More than bees love flowery vales,
More than turtle loves his dove,
More than warblers love the grove,
More than nature loves the spring,
More than linnet loves to sing,
More than insects sunny beams,
More than poets airy dreams,
More than fishes love the flood,
More than patriots public good,
More than flocks the grassy plains,
More than hinds increasing rains,
More than lords their pedigree,
More than Yankees to be free,
More than heirs love twenty-one,
More than heroes laurels won,
More than elves the moonlight shade,
More than ancient maids to wed,
More than hermit loves his cell,
More than beauty to excel,
More than miser loves his store,
More than myself. Can I do more?
—Solomon G. Fay in New York Ledger.

A WOMAN'S WAY.

The hoproom at Fort McKibben was gay with flags; the floor was like a burnished mirror; nearly all the married officers were there with their wives and daughters, and of course not a bachelor was missing; the gold lace on the uniforms glittered in the blaze of many lights; women who in the daytime were merely ordinary mortals had taken on with their evening gowns an air of spiritnelle beauty; a waltz had just ended, and the dancers were collected in groups, talking and laughing; the cornetist of the band was playing a solo, when Captain and Mrs. Kingsley came into the room.

The cornetist caught his breath and lost a note, but no one noticed. The talking and laughing ceased. Every one knew that Mrs. Kingsley was the most beautiful woman in the army, but no one had ever seen her as beautiful as she was that night.

She was very tall, with a full yet slender figure of surpassing grace. Her hair and eyes were dark. Her skin was creamy white, with a real rose tinge in her cheeks. She wore a black gown, and her shoulders gleamed above the chiffon that draped the bodice.

The simile is hackneyed, but her eyes were indeed as bright as the diamonds in her hair. A great red rose burned over her heart, and as she stood in the doorway beside her husband she made a picture that could not be ignored.

Every one looked at her, but she looked at Captain Howard only, who was standing alone, and who, after gazing at her a moment as if spellbound, went toward her.

Her eyes were solemn, her mouth unsmiling, as she gave him her hand.

"Well, Howard," said Captain Kingsley cordially, laying his hand on Captain Howard's shoulder. They had been roommates at West Point and firm friends from that time on.

"How are you, Rob?" said Captain Howard constrainedly.

"Why, what's the matter?" said Captain Kingsley. "You look as solemn as an owl."

"I feel just as I look," said Captain Howard. "Mrs. Kingsley, may I have the next dance?"

"I hope it isn't the thought of dancing with me that depresses you," Mrs. Kingsley said, making an effort to speak lightly.

"I need not answer that," said Captain Howard.

The music began, and Mrs. Kingsley nodded and smiled to her husband as she danced away with Captain Howard.

For a few moments neither spoke. Then his arm grew tense around her, but he did not draw her closer.

"Great heavens! This is terrible!" Mrs. Kingsley whispered.

"I wonder if you can imagine how like a traitor I feel?" said Captain Howard. "I am devoted to Rob, yet here I am, trying to steal his wife."

"But you cannot feel as much like a traitor as I do, for after all his goodness to me—his unfailing love—I want to be stolen."

He stopped dancing and offered her his arm. They went out on to the porch. At the farther end of it he turned toward her, and she stepped back from him a little way.

"This cannot go on forever," he said. "Do you really love me?" she asked.

"You know it."

"And do you know how I love you?"

"Yes."

For a moment she looked into his eyes, then she held out her hands to his.

"No," he said firmly, taking them, but holding her away from him, "I still have some sense of honor. If Rob were not my friend, it would be different, but as it is you must either go away with me and be mine altogether or you must stay here and be only his."

"But if I go away with you it will break Rob's heart."

"I can break his heart without compunction, but I cannot kiss his wife out here in the dark and then go back into the hoproom and speak to him as a trusted friend."

She looked at him scrutinizingly.

"What a curious thing a man is," she said. "My sense of honor would be satisfied if I could keep him from knowing, for I would hate to hurt his feelings."

"Then I am afraid that you have no sense of honor," he said smiling.

"Yes, I have," she said, without the slightest resentment in her voice. "I wouldn't do anything if he were away, but when he is here to take care of me and to defend his own honor I really don't think that it is very wrong for me to do anything I can without his finding out."

"What a curious thing a woman is," he said mockingly, but leniently. "However, it is easy for a man to overlook a great many weaknesses and shortcomings in the woman he loves."

"And when a woman loves a man she overlooks nothing," said Mrs. Kingsley. "It would grieve me to death if you were willing to deceive Rob. I am happy in my love for you because I believe that if I did run away with you you would be as true to me as you are to him."

"And will you go with me?"

"Won't you kiss me unless I do?"

"No," he answered, looking at her steadily. She thought for a moment.

"Then—I will go," she said.

"Alice," said Captain Kingsley's voice close beside her, "I unintentionally overheard what you said. I was bringing your wrap to you." He laid the cape about her shoulders as he spoke. "Come home with me, Howard, meet me in the morning, half an hour before reveille, at the target range."

He seemed to speak mechanically. There was no feeling in his voice, no expression of pain or of anger on his face.

Captain Howard bent his head in silent agreement, and Captain and Mrs. Kingsley walked slowly homeward side by side.

* * * * * * *

The dawn was glimmering in the east, the birds twittered in a desultory fashion, the dew was heavy on the trodden grass, when Captain Kingsley and Captain Howard met on the target range.

"You brought your pistol?" said Captain Kingsley.

"No," said Captain Howard.

"That is just like you," said Captain Kingsley. "I suspected that you would not bring one, so I brought two." He handed one to Captain Howard as he spoke.

"I don't want it, Rob," said Captain Howard, taking it reluctantly. "How can I raise it against you? You have done me no injury!"

Captain Kingsley walked five paces away from Captain Howard.

"Are you ready?" he said, turning toward him.

"Yes."

"Then count three and fire."

The two shots rang out simultaneously. Neither man was touched.

"Why did you do that?" said Captain Kingsley, frowning.

"Why did you?" said Captain Howard. "I gave you a chance to revenge yourself."

"What good would revenge do me?" said Captain Kingsley. "I think that my only wish is to put myself out of her way. Do you mean to shoot me or do you not?"

"I do not," said Captain Howard.

"You leave me no alternative. I must do it myself," said Captain Kingsley.

And he did.

He was buried with military honors in the post cemetery. The papers announced that while he and his friend, Captain Howard, were shooting at a mark his pistol had gone off accidentally and killed him.

The evening after the funeral Mrs. Kingsley was sitting in her drawing room when Captain Howard came in.

"Alice," he said, "dreadful as this has been I cannot regret it, for it gives you to me."

She looked at him, but blankly as if she did not see.

"What is the matter?" he said. "Don't you love me any more?"

"Love you? Yes, but that has nothing to do with it," she answered.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I am going away tomorrow."

"And when may I come?"

"You? Why, never."

"Aren't you going to marry me?"

"You don't suppose that I could marry you after this? When Rob was alive and at home, I would have done anything—anything—but, as I have told you before, if he had been away I would have behaved in a most exemplary manner. Now that he can never come back—now that I am left alone to uphold the honor of his name, do you dream that I would marry you of all people? My sense of honor forbids it."

She smiled wanly, but there was unflinching resolve in her eyes.—Elizabeth Harman in Home Magazine.

Fog Yarns.

Talk at the mess table of the old day boat one morning at Albany turned on the fog which hung over the upper reaches of the river. The night boat had not made her dock yet, and it was really a remarkably thick morning—7:30 o'clock of a midsummer morning and still murky. So said the second pilot.

"I remember," began the purser, "on Lake Champlain, a fog so thick you couldn't see the jack staff from the pilot-house, but old Captain Sam —— put her along all right."

"Pooh!" said the chief engineer. "We were going through a fog in Haverstraw bay in 1874 that we cut a wake in—left it clear half a mile behind us."

"Well," remarked Mate Charley Griffin, who felt it time to say the last word, "I was on the —— in 1868, or 1869 maybe it was, off Anthony's Nose, when we ran into a fog bank that stalled the old wagon, just like a locomotive in a snowdrift; couldn't push her ahead one inch."

"My uncle in Portland, Or.," said the newsboy who had no business to say anything about fogs when his elders were about, "writes me that the other day his neighbor, Mr. Perkins, was shingling his roof when one of those Pacific coast fogs came up. Mr. Perkins shingled out four feet on the fog before he"—

Novel Reading.

It is interesting to know the opinion of so hard a worker and so earnest a player as Mr. Balfour on one of the most easily accessible and delightful recreations of modern times—novel reading.

When entertained at the Sir Walter Scott club, he spoke freely on the present day position of the novel, calling it a really necessary luxury. "The world will insist upon tobacco, daily papers and novels until the end of time. Though literature by no means carries all the cardinal virtues in its train, still it is the greatest engine for the production of cultivated happiness."

ONE OF TWO WAYS.

The bladder was created for one purpose, namely, a receptacle for the urine, and as such is not liable to any form of disease except by by one of two ways. The first way is from imperfect action of the kidneys. The second way is from careless local treatment of other diseases.

Chief Cause.

Unhealthy urine from unhealthy kidneys is the chief cause of bladder troubles. So the womb, like the bladder, was created for one purpose, and if not doctored too much is not liable to weakness or disease, except in rare cases. It is situated back of and very close to the bladder, therefore any pain, disease or inconvenience manifested in the kidneys, back, bladder or urinary passages is often, by mistake, attributed to female weakness or womb trouble of some sort. The error is easily made and may be as easily avoided. To find out correctly, set your urine aside for twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates kidnes or bladder trouble. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. If you need a medicine you should have the best. At druggists fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet, both sent free by mail. Mention the Index-Tribune and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.
